Risk factors

This document is a financial promotion for the FSSA Asian Growth Fund in the EEA and elsewhere where lawful. Investing involves certain risks including:

- The value of investments and any income from them may go down as well as up and are not guaranteed. Investors may get back substantially less than the original amount invested.
- Emerging market risk: Emerging markets tend to be more sensitive to economic and political conditions than developed markets. Other factors include greater liquidity risk, restrictions on investment or transfer of assets, failed/delayed settlement and difficulties valuing securities.
- Currency risk: The Fund invests in assets which are denominated in other currencies; changes in exchange rates will affect the value of the Fund and could create losses. Currency control decisions made by governments could affect the value of the Fund's investments and could cause the Fund to defer or suspend redemptions of its shares.
- Single country / specific region risk: investing in a single country or specific region may be riskier than investing in a number of different countries or regions. Investing in a larger number of countries or regions helps spread risk.

Reference to specific securities (if any) is included for the purpose of illustration only and should not be construed as a recommendation to buy or sell. Reference to the names of any company is merely to explain the investment strategy and should not be construed as investment advice or a recommendation to invest in any of those companies.

Performance review

Over the past 12 months, key contributors to performance included MediaTek, which rose amid growing optimism around its AI ASIC business and strong sales growth momentum. In addition, NVIDIA and MediaTek announced that they would deepen their relationship across AI datacentre infrastructure, with NVIDIA investing US$3.5bn in MediaTek's convertible bonds. Oversea-Chinese Banking Corp (OCBC) reported strong earnings results, mainly driven by wealth management. The new CEO aims to maintain the bank's growth ambitions, with a focus on strengthening its franchise in Hong Kong, Singapore and across ASEAN domestic markets.

On the negative side, HDFC Bank fell as it continued to face a challenging operating environment. While we like the quality and long-term opportunity set among India's private banks, we have been disappointed with execution under the current leadership at HDFC. Consequently, we have been trimming our stake and controlling our overall exposure to the sector. Trip.com declined on concerns about regulatory uncertainty as well as the pace of China's consumer recovery. While domestic and outbound travel demand remained resilient, investors questioned the potential impact of the recent antitrust ruling on the company's long-term competitive position and profitability.

Portfolio review

New purchases over the quarter included SK Hynix, as we took advantage of the pullback in July to initiate a position. Hynix is a leading semiconductor company in Korea with a solid position in the DRAM and NAND memory markets. More importantly, it is the leader in High-Bandwidth Memory (HBM) that is now being optimised for AI use. While traditional DRAM and NAND memory has become commoditised and commands little pricing power, HBM is built around annual contracts, long lead times, and high capital intensity. Customers like NVIDIA must commit to volumes well in advance, and vendors must make investment decisions based on those commitments. This order-based model introduces more predictability and customer stickiness (though it also increases execution risk and dependence on a few large buyers).
We also bought ASMPT, a technology company specialising in surface mount technology (SMT) and semiconductor packaging. As a cyclical business, earnings have been depressed during the prolonged downcycle. However, we believe this is masking an improving business mix and quality, some of which is reflected in the company's higher gross profit margins. When the cycle turns, we believe earnings could rebound strongly, given the commitment to keep operating expenses flat over the next few years.
We sold Colgate-Palmolive India to consolidate the portfolio into more attractive investment opportunities. We believe valuations are not cheap for its limited growth, and there has been a revolving door of CEOs in recent years. We divested KE Holdings, a small position in which we had no conviction to add.

Stock spotlight

Mediatek is one of the largest chip design companies globally. We have been following Mediatek for many years and have witnessed its performance through the cycles. Throughout the ups and downs in its history, its talented engineers and well-aligned management team usually find a way through to the next "big thing". From optical drives for computers to scan CDs, it entered the smartphone supply chain with 2G modem chips and benefited from technology upgrades each year – until it collapsed in 2015-17 amid poor execution and competition from both low- and high-end competitors.
In 2018 Rick Tsai joined Mediatek from TSMC and focused on getting the basics right again. We believe Mediatek has been transformed under his leadership into a better-quality company. In recent years, the company has improved its competitiveness, and we believe its market share will likely remain stable. With the smartphone market now in the mature stages, the company is investing into new areas (ASIC, auto, augmented reality/virtual reality, Internet of Things, artificial intelligence) to diversify and internationalise its business.

Outlook

Asian equities continue to offer a compelling combination of structural growth and improving earnings prospects. We see attractive opportunities in India, supported by favourable demographics and rising incomes, while in China, the shift towards higher-value industries and globally competitive businesses continues to create a rich opportunity set for long-term investors. In the near term, markets are likely to be influenced by the path of US interest rates, global trade policy developments, Chinese policy support and the sustainability of AI-related capital expenditure. But we believe valuations across much of Asia remain reasonable relative to long-term earnings potential, particularly in parts of China and ASEAN where sentiment remains subdued. Meanwhile, though returns have been driven by a narrow group of AI beneficiaries over the past two years, there are encouraging signs that market leadership is beginning to broaden. We are confident that our portfolio holdings – high-quality businesses with strong governance, resilient balance sheets and durable competitive advantages – should continue to deliver attractive shareholder returns in the long run.

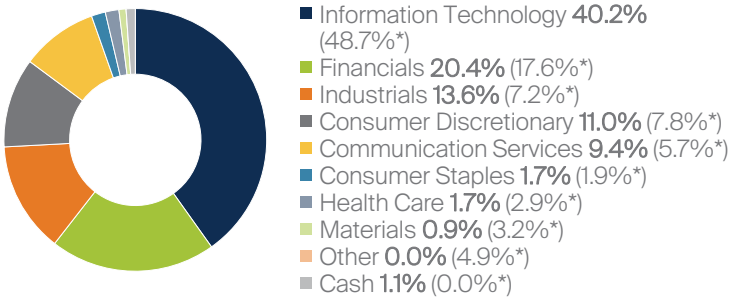

Our long-term investment themes:

- Dominant consumer franchises which have an edge in brand, distribution and innovation.
- High quality financials, supported by a strong deposit franchise or a specific loan niche.
- The rise in healthcare spending, due to increasing incomes and healthy consumer choices.
- Beneficiaries of a smarter, more connected world.
- An ageing population and the growing trend of automation.
